

KAYAN

Social Impact Framework

Why Kayan exists, and how we measure the change — not claimed, measured

1 • Why Kayan Exists

Yemeni talent always existed. The system to verify it, manage its work, and guarantee it is paid did not. Kayan builds that system. Every placement is a Yemeni professional earning sustainable income; every cohort that passes through Kayan Forge is capability built where it is scarce; every project delivered is proof that Yemeni talent can compete. This is not a programme bolted onto a business — it is the reason the institution exists.

This framework sets out the change Kayan seeks, the path by which its work creates that change, the indicators and targets by which it will be judged, and the discipline by which impact is measured rather than merely claimed. It is written to two audiences at once: Kayan itself, which must hold to its mission, and the development bodies and impact investors whose capital is unlocked by credible, framework-aligned measurement.

Kayan's stance on impact: measured, not claimed. Every cohort, every project and every sponsorship is documented, attributable and evaluable — by donors, by investors, and by the people we serve. Impact and commercial discipline are not in tension; the more talent we put to work under the guarantee, the greater both the revenue and the social return.

2 • Theory of Change

The diagram below traces how Kayan's inputs become the change it seeks — from the talent, trust system, training and capital it puts in, through the work it does, to the outputs it produces, the outcomes it creates, and the lasting impact it pursues.

Three principles run across every stage. Inclusion is by design — women, youth (18–29), internally displaced persons and first-time earners are targeted in every cohort and every project pod, not counted after the fact. Impact is measured, not claimed. And volunteer time is recorded but never monetised, because attaching a notional dollar value to volunteer hours would distort the reporting and mislead the very partners the measurement is meant to serve.

3 · How Kayan Measures Impact — Five Dimensions

Kayan measures across five dimensions, each with concrete indicators. These are the same dimensions used in Kayan's public Company Profile, carried through here into a full measurement system so that what Kayan promises publicly is exactly what it tracks internally.

DIMENSION	WHAT WE TRACK (indicators)
Inclusion	% of women, youth (18–29), IDPs and first-time earners in every cohort and every project pod
Income	USD earned by verified talent through Kayan; the 'first $100' graduation rate (a person's first paid engagement)
Career permanence	% of talent with ≥3 paid Kayan engagements in 12 months; advancement up the Trust Ladder (T0 → T4)
Compliance	Dual-approval coverage on payments (target 100%); evidence-retention compliance; zero hawala/crypto/personal-account channels
Quality	Client satisfaction on delivered projects; QA holdback-release rate; rework rate by pod

Why these five: Inclusion and Income measure who benefits and by how much; Career permanence measures whether the benefit lasts; Compliance and Quality prove the institution is trustworthy enough for the benefit to be real. Together they answer the only question that matters — is Yemeni talent actually, durably, better off?

4 · Targets — 12 and 36 Months

Targets are public commitments, measured not claimed. They carry forward the institution's stated impact goals, updated to current structure (Kayan Forge as the training engine).

IMPACT INDICATOR	12-MONTH TARGET	36-MONTH TARGET	WHY IT MATTERS
Total paid to Yemeni talent (USD)	$50,000+	$500,000+	The largest documented freelancer payments in Yemen
Verified professionals (T1+)	50+	500+	The first verified registry of Yemeni professionals
Kayan Forge graduates placed into work	30+	300+	Proof the training-to-work pipeline works
Completed projects under formal contract	20+	200+	Shifting Yemeni freelancing into the formal economy
Women among verified professionals	30%+	40%+	Women's economic empowerment as an operating standard

Recorded volunteer hours (Kayan for Yemen)	500+	5,000+	Social capital built in Aden — recorded, never monetised

5 • Alignment to Global Frameworks

Kayan's measurement is deliberately mapped to the frameworks development bodies and impact investors already use. This is what makes Kayan fundable as a delivery partner, not just a grantee — its numbers arrive in the language donors report in.

Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)

SDG	HOW KAYAN CONTRIBUTES
SDG 8 — Decent Work & Economic Growth	Formal, contracted, guaranteed-payment work for talent previously in the informal economy
SDG 4 — Quality Education	Kayan Forge delivers training tied to real labour-market demand, not empty certificates
SDG 5 — Gender Equality	30%+ women among verified talent as an operating target; a safe, women-friendly space
SDG 10 — Reduced Inequalities	Opening the digital economy to talent in the governorates, not only the capital
SDG 17 — Partnerships for the Goals	A model that engages development bodies, universities, corporates and government as partners

Decent Work & impact-investing standards

Beyond the SDGs, Kayan's indicators map to the ILO Decent Work agenda (employment, rights, social protection, dialogue) and to the IRIS+ catalogue used by impact investors (jobs created, income earned, demographics of beneficiaries). Where a development partner requires its own indicator set, Kayan's data structure can report into it — the underlying records (placements, income, demographics, compliance) are captured once and mapped many ways.

Investment consultant's note: this alignment is the key that unlocks blended capital. A development body cannot fund an organisation whose impact it cannot measure in its own terms. By building measurement to SDG / Decent Work / IRIS+ standards from day one, Kayan turns its social mission into a fundable asset — exactly the blended-capital opportunity identified in the Partnerships & Funding Strategy.

6 • Kayan for Yemen — the Civic Mandate

Kayan for Yemen is the institution's civic mandate: its standing commitment to the communities it works in, expressed through volunteering and community projects. It is a brand and a mandate, not a fifth business line. Its purpose is impact, funded by the strength of the commercial lines. The framing matters: a mandate is a commitment to act, not a market offering. Kayan for Yemen is what Kayan owes; Managed Delivery is what Kayan sells. Confusing the two would erode both.

Three focus areas

- Urban environment & public spaces — tree planting, city cleaning, and neighbourhood improvement in the parts of Aden where Kayan is present — visible by design, so the community first meets Kayan as a contributor.
- Youth opportunity — support for young people not yet ready to enter Kayan's verification process, who with mentorship and small practical support can reach the entry point — the pipeline behind the talent registry.
- Civic & community institutions — volunteer time and professional skill (legal, accounting, design, communications) for schools, clinics and neighbourhood institutions — where partner-company volunteers most naturally engage.

Governance of the mandate

PRINCIPLE	HOW IT WORKS
Segregated funding	A floor commitment flows quarterly from net revenue into a ring-fenced internal account, distinct from operating capital
Partner contributions	Received into that account against named programmes; partners amplify Kayan's mandate, they do not buy a service
Volunteer hours	Recorded in the impact report — never monetised, as monetising them would distort the reporting
Clear separation	If a partner pays Kayan to design & run their own CSR, that is a commercial Managed Delivery engagement, not Kayan for Yemen
Coordination	Owned day-to-day by a dedicated coordinator under founder-team supervision; PSEA & safeguarding mandatory for all volunteers

The volunteer programme

Volunteers register at volunteers.kayanwork.com, recording skills and availability. Activities — beach cleanups, tree planting, school visits, community support — each generate community trust and documented impact. A volunteer-hours system rewards contribution (priority for verification, hub credit, Forge discounts). Every volunteer completes mandatory safeguarding and PSEA orientation. The programme is non-negotiable on child safety and on the dignity of everyone it touches.

7 • The Impact Report

Kayan publishes an Impact Report that turns the measurement above into an honest, auditable account for donors, investors, partners and the public. This section settles how impact is reported.

ELEMENT	DECISION
Cadence	Quarterly internal dashboard; an annual public Impact Report
What it reports	The five dimensions, the targets vs actuals, demographics, and Kayan-for-Yemen activity
Volunteer hours	Recorded and reported as hours — NOT converted to a dollar value
Cost-per-placement	Reported as actual programme cost ÷ verified placements — a real efficiency figure, never inflated
Attribution	Only outcomes Kayan can credibly attribute are claimed; contribution vs attribution stated honestly
Verification	Backed by the audit trail in the systems; figures are evidenced, not estimated

Decision settled (closing the open Impact Report question): Kayan reports impact in real units — people, dollars earned, placements, hours — and reports cost-per-placement as genuine programme cost divided by actual placements. It does not monetise volunteer hours or inflate social-value estimates. Credibility is the asset; honest, conservative reporting is how Kayan keeps it and how it wins development-body trust.

8 • Measurement & Operationalization

Impact data is captured once, at the point of activity, inside the operating systems — then mapped to whatever framework a partner needs. No separate, after-the-fact data collection.

DATA	CAPTURED WHERE	OWNER	CADENCE
Placements, income, demographics	Talent registry & Delivery OS, at engagement	Delivery Lead	Per engagement
Training & graduates	Kayan Forge OS, per cohort	Forge Lead	Per cohort
Compliance (dual-approval, channels)	Accounting System, per payment	Finance Lead	Per payment
Quality (satisfaction, rework, holdback)	Delivery QA, per project	Delivery Lead	Per project
Volunteer hours & civic activity	Volunteer platform, per event	Kayan-for-Yemen Coordinator	Per event
The Impact Report	Compiled from the above	CEO + People Lead	Quarterly / annual

■ Governing policies & forms for impact & safeguarding

- Safeguarding & PSEA Policy (KAY-COM-003) — mandatory for all volunteers & staff
- Whistleblowing Policy (KAY-COM-004) — a safe channel for concerns
- Data Protection — consent on every registration; no personal data in logs
- Anti-Fraud & COI Policy (KAY-GOV-006) — restricted-funds & gift integrity
- Grant & fund compliance checklist — donor reporting & restricted-funds handling
- Volunteer registration & consent form; volunteer code of conduct
- Impact Report template — the annual public account

9 • The Commitment

Kayan's social impact is not a department or a disclaimer. It is the institution working as designed: talent verified, trained, matched to real work, paid under guarantee, and counted honestly. The framework above exists so that this change can be seen, measured, funded and trusted — by the people Kayan serves, and by everyone who chooses to back it.

Yemeni talent always existed. The system to verify it, manage its work, and guarantee it is paid did not. Kayan builds that system — and measures, honestly, the difference it makes. Behind every successful project, a Kayan.
